The objective of this chapter is to evaluate some of the proposed classifications of sedimentary carbonate rocks, and to present suggestions for naming and describing them.

Chapter 4 Classification of Sedimentary Carbonate Rocks

Calcium carbonate is a chemical compound with the formula CaCO_3 . It is a common substance found in rocks as the minerals calcite and aragonite (most notably as limestone, which is a type of sedimentary rock consisting mainly of calcite) and is the main component of pearls and the shells of marine organisms, snails, and eggs. Calcium carbonate is the active ingredient in agricultural lime and ...

Sodium carbonate, Na_2CO_3 , (also known as washing soda, soda ash and soda crystals) is the inorganic compound with the formula Na_2CO_3 and its various hydrates. All forms are white, water-soluble salts. All forms have a strongly alkaline taste and give moderately alkaline solutions in water.

Sinkholes are common where the rock below the land surface is limestone, carbonate rock, salt beds, or rocks that can naturally be dissolved by groundwater circulating through them.

In many formations of strata there are repeating patterns. For example, clay layers alternate with sandstone layers; or carbonate layers alternate with shales. This is usually caused by repeating cycles of climate. In warmer times the sea rises, and carbonate rocks are deposited in shallow subtropical seas. Later, ice builds up at the poles and the sea level drops.
