James Joyce - poems - Conscious Living Foundation

Although like the previous poem it's somewhat fragmentary, it stands as a more successful self-contained little poem. Written in around 1843, it wasn't published until the early twentieth century.
Had there been falsehood in my breast No thorns had marred my road, This spirit had not lost its rest, These tears had never flowed. 4.

Out of the cradle endlessly rocking, Out of the mocking-bird's throat, the musical shuttle, Out of the Ninth-month midnight, Over the sterile sands and the fields beyond, where the child leaving his bed wandered alone, bareheaded, barefoot ...

Out of the Cradle Endlessly Rocking by Walt Whitman

Wind is no more soothing breeze, Fire of hunger tearing our souls and scorching Sun bringing no solace Water nowhere to wet the lips parched, we drop down on dead River bed scorched Earth cracked like veins in the eyes burning, and the soul heaped on Soil, staring .. Into the Emptiness!!..

(arguably the most famous poem to take this form). Elegies are seldom without form, though the form varies from poem to poem. Epic The epic is a long narrative poem that usually unfolds a history or mythology of a nation or race. The epic details the adventures and deeds of a hero and, in so doing, tells the story of a nation.
